Dear Peter,

Thanks for your e-mail and providing available dates.

September 13th would be better to fit into our current webinar schedules, and I feel very sorry that we have to ask you to give the lecture on late evening which will be the best time for veterinarians in Far East region, basing on our survey result. If we do webinar on daytime we only can get a very few participation.

Your lecture at webinar will be translated in Chinese simultaneously, and most of all vets would like to have a hard copy of lecture notes as well. We only give out a PDF version of lecture notes(with Chinese translation) after speaker's permission. No video is just good because most participating veterinarians do not have high speed internet for video on webinar.

So just confirm with you on these:

1. Webinar date and time: September 13th, 21:00-22:00 Singapore time
2. Topic: Liver diseases in dogs and cats (or you name a proper name for it)
3. PPT presentation submission for translation: before September 1st

By the way, Vet Education will help conduct a speaker training online with you for around 15 min before webinar day if you need.

Please also let us know how to process your payment for the webinar. Any other question just let me know.

Warm Regards

[redacted]

Dear [redacted]

My apologies for the delay in reply.

Either Thursday 13th or 20th September would suit me. 13.00-14.30 is much more convenient for me, but I can do 22.00-22.30 if you insist.

Please let me know what is required. I presume you would like me to provide a PowerPoint presentation. For this subject I do not have any videos (which make things harder).

Regards

Peter

Dear Peter,

Thank you for your quick reply to my e-mail.

The liver diseases topic is very good, we have not done on liver diseases yet. we usually try to use a Thursday evening, however please feel free to choose a day which will be convenience for you in September. Once you have chosen it I will start planning for it.

Is this be a private consultation or as part of Hill's MOU with Murdoch? I think [redacted] is in best situation in answering this question.

Thanks and Regards

Dear [redacted]

It was very good to hear from you. I am still interested and should be available (depending on the date) to provide a webinar for you. Do you have a topic that you would like me to speak about or may I choose my own? Liver disease and its treatment, including dietary management, would be good, for example.

Despite our best intentions, neither [redacted] or I have progressed the MOU or renewed the contract between Hills and Murdoch University. We are keen to resurrect this relationship which has lapsed of late, and I will need to go back to my notes after the meeting with [redacted] last year to remind myself of 'where we are at' with this. Would you intend this webinar to be part of that arrangement or as a private consultancy?

With warm regards – and [redacted] too,

Peter

Dear Peter,

How are you? I would like to send you kind reminder of Hill's inviting you to speak for us on webiner in September. If you know that you can set the time for it please let me know so I can plan in early.

We normal have webinars in Singapore time 21:00-22:30 which might be same time in Perth. If this time is not convenient another alternative is 13:00-14:30.

Thanks and Regards
